Real Estate Practice Co-Chair Aaron May will be part of the conversation shaping what's next in multifamily.

On June 2, Aaron will moderate the panel “View from the Top: Multifamily, Affordable, BTR, Student Housing Outlook & Forecasts” at Connect Midwest Multifamily Trends 2026.

Midwest markets continue to draw strong investor and developer interest, and this session will bring together industry leaders to examine where the market is headed. From rent growth trends and shifting risk profiles to the future of affordable and workforce housing, the discussion will explore what's driving performance across multifamily sectors.

Panelists will also take a closer look at development and investment strategies, from mixed-use and build-to-rent to the conversion of underperforming assets, and where the most active opportunities are emerging across urban and suburban markets.
