Bio

Matthew Spinner is a results-oriented, value-driven paralegal with extensive experience in litigation and construction law. He has a proven track record of successfully supporting multiple attorneys and managing complex caseloads within these practices. With a strong background in document preparation, legal research, and case management, Matthew ensures the efficient execution of legal processes while meeting critical client deadlines.

Matthew is well-versed at navigating the preparation, review, and filing of legal documents, as well as managing communication between all involved parties. His expertise also extends to eDiscovery, the use of legal technology, and ensuring compliance with industry best practices in litigation and construction law.

Prior to joining Gould & Ratner, Matthew gained valuable experience in contract negotiation, review, and administration, contributing to his comprehensive understanding of both construction contracts and litigation processes.

Whether assisting with legal filings, supporting discovery processes, or managing day-to-day operations for the litigation and construction teams, Matthew brings a high level of expertise, attention to detail, and dedication to delivering results for clients.
